A Dog's Understanding.

A celebrated picture shows a little boy crawling on the floor and inquiring of a pet dog, "Can't you talk?" The dog looks as if he is not sure about it, and seems to say, "Perhaps I can; I'll try." There is no doubt that dogs understand many words, and we give the following anecdote from Hartford, Ct., in which a dog named Major showed unusual sagacity.

Major's hatred of a cat appears to be deep-seated, and he will kill all that come in his way. His master's wife had a cat which she determined Major should not harm, and she took great pains to impress the big brute with this idea.

The dog seemed to understand every word she said, but would keep his eyes fastened upon puss with a longing and hungry look, as if it were a great self-denial for him to obey.

But his mistress conquered and made him understand that he must live on friendly terms with puss. More than once he had been seen watching the cat with a look of evil intent, but out of respect to his mistress, he conquered his nature, and would throw himself upon the ground with a sigh expressive of deep disgust at the situation.

One morning, the lady told her husband that the cat had become so troublesome that she guessed it would have to be killed. A few minutes later, a rush and a struggling noise was heard, and as the lady of the house hastened to the door to see what had happened, Major walked up to his mistress and laid at her feet the dead body of puss, then looked up with an air of triumph, and wagged his tail with intense satisfaction. He had heard his mistress express the wish that puss might be killed, and this was in consonance with his own feelings that he went right out and finished the cat.

*Persons whose blood has been corrupted, and the circulation deranged by foul secretions—the result of the disordered chemistry of the body—need for their purification something like an inward baptism at the hands of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, whose laboratory is at No. 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Her Vegetable Compound is fairly inundating the country as with a river of life.

Surprise!

Hearing a story gravely told about a clam that crawled up a wall, one might reasonably expect that the man who told it had been putting something into his mouth to the damage of his brains; but the following from a Fall River correspondent carries its explanation with it. It seems that a gentleman in Providence, happened to be called into his cellar late one night.

The wind was blowing almost a gale, and the rain poured down in torrents, and the night was one to cause a feeling of "uncertainty" in the heart of the bravest.

The gentleman in question never indulgences in intoxicating liquors, and there is no reason to suppose that his nerves were unusually disturbed. He is very fond of clams, however, and had a peck of the shell-fish in the cellar, which were to be cooked the next day.

As he descended the stairs, shading the lamp with his hand to shield it from the draught, he saw the bucket of clams at the foot of the stairs. Then he was amazed to see what appeared to be a small white clam move gradually from the bucket, make its way quickly across the cellar floor, and mount the wall at the further side of the cellar to a distance of three feet from the floor.

Never having seen a clam walk before, the gentleman was seriously disturbed. He placed the lamp in a convenient position, took up a piece of barrel-hoop as a means of offense, and moved quickly and softly across the cellar floor.

The white object proved to be indeed a clam, but it had used other means of locomotion than its own. An industrious mouse had walked over the bucket and this ambitious clam had fastened its nippers on the mouse's tail. The mouse, frightened, had started for its hole in the wall, but failed to get into it on account of the shell-fish attachment to his tail. Of course the gentleman relieved the mouse of his encumbrance—and was probably somewhat relieved himself.

"WHAT ALEXANDER MIGHT HAVE DONE"

The late Czar of Russia was eminently a great man, as his action in liberating thirty-six million serfs from slavery qualified him to be. Yet with all his greatness, Alexander left it to Dr. Swayne to liberate the world from the annoyance and pain of scores of skin diseases, by producing Swayne's Ointment. Think of the tens, hand-reds, thousands it has cured, and then remember it is economical, effective, reliable, and pure, and if you will only try it you will have a cure.

Rough on Sam.

Sam Rideout is an Austin clerk. He is personally not very attractive, and his morals are of a very inferior quality.
One of Sam's peculiarities is to use mercantile terms and expressions, no matter what subject is being discussed.
He and a few friends were talking about clergymen and doctors the other day, and one of them asked Sam who his family doctor was.

"Dr. Dosem supplies us with all we need in the physical department, and Parson Soothem furnishes us a full line of pious goods," said Sam.

"Look here, Sam," remarked Gil-hooley, "If Dr. Dosem is responsible for your looks, and Parson Soothem furnished you with your morals, all I've got to say is, that they have shoved a lot of second-hand goods off on you, and they're badly damaged besides.
You ought to deal, from now on, with first-class houses. You have been swindled outrageously. To look at you, one would suppose your good looks and manners were of home manufacture."

A Jersey veteran is claiming a pension and seventeen years arrears on the ground of "chronic laziness, contracted in the army."

Where Cattle Come From.

When we read of 250,000 head of cattle being driven every year from Texas to the Northern markets, and when we are assured that in 1870 as many as 560,000 were driven on foot to Colorado, Wyoming and Kansas, besides thousands shipped by steamer to New Orleans and elsewhere, we are surprised to learn that this immense drain on the herds of Texas does not perceptibly decrease the number of cattle in the State.

When we visit the great ranches of Western Texas we are no longer surprised, but rather wonder that the United States hold people enough to eat and use all the cattle we see. It has been found, from careful examination of the Census Bureau reports, that to every 100 persons in the United States there is required eighty head of cattle, and that this requirement has not varied 1 per cent. in thirty years.

Taking this as a basis of calculation, we find that the Northern and Eastern States have less than the requisite number, and it is to these States that the East looks for her beef supply.—From "Through Texas."

A Mosaic Portrait of Garfield.

Dr. Salviati, who gave to this country the fine mosaic portrait of Lincoln now in the library of congress, and who is now completing a companion portrait of Garfield, which he will also give to America, was formerly a leading lawyer of Vicenza in Venetia. Seeing the magnificent mosaics in St. Mark's church, Venice, going to destruction because no one understood how to restore and preserve them, he abandoned his profession and began studying the lost art of the Byzantines. By his skill the mosaics of St. Mark's were restored, and he has executed many other important works in Westminster abbey and St. Paul's, London; in the cathedral of Aix-la-Chapelle, where three thousand square feet of surface were covered in two years and a half; and at Bangkok, where the outside of a cupola of the king's palace, seventeen thousand square feet in area, was covered with some 2,500,000 bits of gold enamel.

The portrait of Garfield is now almost finished in Dr. Salviati's studio in Venice, and is described as a marvelously perfect piece of work.

Christianity has its chief vitality in the constancy and constance of the monotonous life of each day and hour.

Patented Articles.

The most valuable and money-making patents are those which are obtained upon small articles. The "rubber ball," which sells for ten cents, yields to the holder of the patent an income equal to that on a capital of five hundred thousand dollars. The rubber tip on the end of lead pencils, which is used for erasing false marks, is also secured by patent, and for every tip used the manufacturer pays a royalty to the inventor, which gives him an independent income. The consumption of these pencils is very great, and the simple idea of tipping them with rubber has placed the man who originated it beyond the reach of need in the future, so long as he clings to his patent. Another very simple but very valuable invention is the gummed paper wrappers, which obviate the necessity of using mucilage or paste to secure papers for the mails. The patent is on the application of the gum to the wrappers, and a royalty is paid to the inventor of every wrapper thus prepared. As the number of wrappers used daily in the forwarding of mails amounts to hundreds of thousands, the income derived by the inventor from his royalty will be seen to be a magnificent one. The gilet-pointed screw was patented in 1846. It is familiar to everybody, and millions have been realized from its manufacture, yet so simple is the principle that the wonder is that it was not thought out and applied almost as far back as the age of iron. The patent shoe-tip, now universally used in boys' shoes, has brought its inventor somewhere about two millions of dollars. Probably the most valuable patent in the line ever taken out in any country is that which secures the Plympton roller-skates to its holder. Skating on rollers bears but a faint resemblance to skating on ice, but it is exhilarating sport, nevertheless, and sprang at once into popularity with the young of both sexes.

In Brazil and tropical countries where ice is unknown and skating impossible, except upon artificially frozen ponds, the rollers were greeted as a veritable godsend, and rinks with smooth earthen floors sprang up like magic. The value of the patent on the roller skate to its holder is estimated at over one million dollars, and he expended over one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars in legal expenses alone to prevent the patent from infringement in England. The dancing negro, which can be seen in any toy-shop, and which is simply a figure of a Dinaah or a Jumbo balanced by a wire, which is moved rapidly up and down by a system of clock work in the box upon which it dances, provides an income for its inventor of thirty thousand dollars a year.

The common needle-threader, to be found on sale at nearly every street corner, is worth ten thousand dollars a year to the man who thought out the problem which might easily have been solved by a boy of ten years, only it was not. And these are but a few of the trifles which have enriched men.

AND HOW THEY CAN BE CURED," which is offered gratis, postpaid, to all applicants. It contains valuable information for all who suppose themselves afflicted with liver trouble, and is a most valuable
